

evidently—

Q Was he fishing?

A He had been fishing; he had his rod, and he had evidently been to the south of me but how far I couldn't tell; it might have been two blocks, might have been four or five blocks down that way; but anyway he came up and he had a bluefish and he told me that he had caught this fish on a hook that I had given him earlier in the day and he showed me how the hook had been bent out of shape when he pulled the fish up on the sand.

Q Do you remember giving him the hook?

A I remember giving him the hook and can show you a duplicate of it to-day, exactly what kind of hook it was.

Q What time of day was that, do you recall?

A When I gave him the hook, I don't remember; it was evidently some time in the afternoon.

Q Was Applegate employed or was he down in Lavalette all the time not doing anything at all?

A He lived there in Lavalette; he lived there on McGee Avenue to the west side across the railroad, the next avenue to where we live but over across the railroad to the west.

Q What conversation did you have with Mr. Applegate at